Why I Love the Library

From before I could even walk, I had books. I'm pretty sure I was bought a book, before a walker. I remember when I first learned to read. My first book was The Cat in the Hat, by Dr. Seuss. Boy, I used to sing those ABC's! I remember being denied by Head Start because I was "too advanced." The first time I ever walked into a library, I was probably in Kindergarten. I remember I fell in love right away. I loved to be read to, I loved the smell of the pages of books, I loved the way books looked on a shelf. Most of all, I loved the quantity of the books in a library.

Now, my favorite library is located in my school. I love the librarians. The atmosphere of the library is probably the calmest in the whole school. I love how big it is. I love the assortment of genres of books. I even spend my lunch time in the library. The library has helped me stay focused and get involved in activities at school. If the libraries can keep me focused, imagine how many other students are benefited by the school library. If my school didn't have a library, I would probably be doing absolutely nothing at all in my spare time. The thing I love most about my school's library is how nice everyone is. To me, the library is the perfect place to chill out and take a break from the world. When I want to escape from reality, I bury myself in a corner with a book in my library, the school library. This is why I love Libraries.
