

Ruth Ramirez, North Wilkes, North Carolina
7th Grade, West Wilkes Middle School

Why are libraries important?

Libraries are important to me because how i am a hispanic / latino i really don't know how to talk english. When I go to the library at my school i choose a book and they always but always help my grammar improve more and more. libraries are important to the community , state , country , nation to anyone because when there is someone in need they want to read a book and can't afford books when they can go to the public libraries and check out book of there own . Then something aren't available in the internet and they can always find their answer in a library .Libraries always improving mine and lots of students grammar and test scores .

Libraries aren't always libraries because there allways technology. Libraries are important because they enable people to gain information that builds their personality and careers like me . They also enable us to appreciate and understand the word around us . Libraries are places to come know themselves and their community . Libraries play a big important part in the political life of a community. Libraries provide the immigrants like my family with helpful information and help them improved their language in english .

IN the libraries there is always something or someone that encourages reading. the best library for me would be in school because you feel like the library is your space , and make you part of your community . There is also computing because there is free internet, especially people looking for and applying into jobs , kids , teens , and more us computers to do our homework because we could not afford computer or internet ,people without printers at home and go to the library and go print it out .

There is a free courses, like jobs skills, english if its not your native language like me i speak Spanish but i learn more english with book's or do fun things like creating writing , arts , and sports . You always learn new skills to read better.

Ruth Ramires Lopez
7th Grade, West Wilkes Middle School
Shelly Mitchell, Librarian