Student Library Ambassador Program

Win a free trip to Washington, DC by showing your support for libraries!

We're sending six student ambassadors (and one parent or guardian each) from two elementary, two middle, and two high schools in North Carolina on a free trip to advocate for libraries during National Library Legislative Day in Washington, DC on Monday May 4th and Tuesday May 5, 2015.

2014 NCLA Student Ambassadors with ALA President Barbara Stripling in Washington, D.C.

To enter, all you have to do is show how much you love libraries and what effect it's had on your life, any way you want—essay, song, video, poem, interpretive dance, etc.—and submit your entry by mail or email by March 16, 2015.

Your submission should address three questions by March 16, 2015:

1. Why are libraries important to you and your classmates?
2. How have libraries impacted you personally?
3. How are libraries important for the future of North Carolina?

National Library Legislative Day will be held on May 4th and May 5, 2014. State library leaders and advocates along with 6 student ambassadors (and one parent or guardian) will travel to Washington D.C. on May 4th as a group, spend the evening site seeing in D.C., and spend the night at hotel. The following day, we will break into four teams and meet with North Carolina's state leaders in both the House of Representatives and Senate telling them why libraries are important to all of us and the future well-being of North Carolina.
